Dear Friend,

Thank you for writing to GLAD. GLAD is unable to provide substantive legal information or assistance to people in prison outside of New England, because most laws relating to sexual orientation, gender identity and HIV/AIDS status, as well as prison laws and policies, vary from state to state.

You may wish to contact one or more of the organizations listed below for assistance with issues of violence and maltreatment in prisons and jails, or regarding prisoner medical care.

As a general rule, it is a good idea to document your situation as fully as possible. If you believe you are being mistreated, either by fellow prisoners or members of the prison administration, you might consider filing formal grievances within the prison to register your complaints. While filing grievances may be met with a certain amount of hostility from the prison administration, following the established complaint procedure can be valuable in the long run, by showing that the administration was fully informed about the harassment and turned a blind eye or otherwise responded inappropriately.

Additionally, try to keep all correspondence and paperwork between you and the prison administration or others regarding the matter. Keep a log of the harassment or other problems you face, with an emphasis on facts—who did and said what, when and where any incident(s) occurred, whether there were witnesses, etc.

Good luck in pursuing your rights. We hope these ideas and resources are of service.
