Facts on Established Medical Care for Transgender Adolescents

Research shows that medical care for transgender adolescents is safe and effective.

Healthcare providers who specialize in the treatment of gender dysphoria in adolescents follow well-established standards of care developed through decades of clinical study.

Medical care provided to transgender youth involves in-depth screening by mental health and medical professionals, informed consent of the young person’s parents and informed assent by the patient.

The well-established standards of care for transgender adolescents have been endorsed and adopted by the major U.S. medical and mental health associations including, but not limited to:

- The American Medical Association
- The American Academy of Pediatrics
- The American Association of Child and Adolescent Psychiatrists
- The American Psychiatric Association
- The American Psychological Association
- The Pediatric Endocrine Society
